Within one year, Liu Xuan becomes a husband from a boyfriend and a father from son. Having traveled from North America to Europe then to Asia and gone through ups and downs of life, Liu Xuan is no longer the rebellious teenager as his father Liu Yong depicted nor the talented student of Harvard in readers' eyes. Getting rid of the reflections and definitions of life of the elder generation, he finds a way belonging to the young generation. In this book, Liu Xuan tells many wonderful stories about friendship, love, father and son, music and travel. He shares with readers his personal experience of modern life, of self and family, and of cities.
