Enemies at Home (Flavia Albia Mysteries, Book 2) Lindsey Davis

In ancient Rome, often the people Romans feared most were the "enemies at home," the slaves under their own roofs. Because of this, Roman law decreed that if the head of a household was murdered at home, and the culprit wasn't quickly discovered, his slaves-- all of them, guilty or not-- were presumed responsible and put to death. When a couple is found dead in their bedroom, some of their slaves know what is about to happen. They flee to the Temple of Ceres, which is respected as a haven for refugees. The authorities, under pressure from all sides to find a solution, ask Flavia Albia, a private informer like her father, Marcus Didius Falco, to solve the murders.
